MARKET SUMMARY

In July, Polish bonds experienced a stronger month: on the 3-year maturity yields decreased by 30-, on the 5 year maturity by 37-, and on the 10 year maturity by 39 basis points. At the beginning of the month, the Polish central bank kept the base rate unchanged, so it remained at 5.75% in line with market expectations. The communication from the central bank governor remained hawkish, stating that they are unlikely to begin the rate-cutting cycle before 2026 because inflation, due to the government's decision to normalize energy prices, will start rising again. Currently the inflation is 4,2% year on year in July according to the preliminary estimates, which was already a big rebound from the previous month 2.6%, but came below the market expectations of 4,4%. The higher price increase was mainly driven by the aforementioned normalization of energy prices. According to a Bloomberg survey in July, the Polish economy may have grown by 2.8% in the second quarter, and next year's GDP growth forecast was revised up from 3.5% to 3.8%. The Purchasing Managers' Index (PMI) rose to 47.3 in July from the previous month's 45 arriving above market expectations. While the indicator is still below the 50 threshold, the latest value was above the trend line, indicating that although the subcomponents still show a decline, the pace is slower than measured in the previous month. Industrial production posted an increase of 0.3% in the fifth month of the year, thus arrived above market expectations. As for the state budget, the government generated a deficit of 16,794.3 million PLN in the sixth month of the year, bringing the 12-month rolling budget deficit to 4.13% of GDP.
