

INVESTMENT POLICY OF THE FUND

The Fund aims to share in the returns of the Polish stock market, and to profit from Polish economic growth through stock prices and dividend income. In accordance with the risk characteristics of equity investments, the Fund qualifies as a high-risk investment. According to the Fund Manager's intentions, the bulk of the Fund's portfolio is made up of the shares of foreign companies issued through public offerings. The primary investment targets are the securities, traded on the stock exchange or about to be listed on the stock exchange, of companies that operate in Poland or that derive a significant portion of their revenues from Poland, or whose shares are listed on the Warsaw Stock Exchange. The Fund may also invest in equities of other Central and Eastern European companies (Austria, Czech Republic, Hungary, Russia, Romania and Turkey). When developing the portfolio, the shares determine the nature of the Fund, and thus the proportion of shares that can be held in the Fund at any given time may reach the prevailing legal maximum. The Fund holds more than 30% of its assets in currencies other than the local currency (HUF).

MARKET SUMMARY

August started with a correction in developed economies, including the US. Contributing to the downturn was the likelihood of a hard landing in the economy as opposed to a soft landing. On the other hand, the Japanese central bank's interest rate hike in response to the weakening yen negatively affected investors who had leveraged equity positions financed with cheap Japanese yen. This caused a stock market crash in Japan that spilled over to the United States. US Federal Reserve Chairman Jerome Powell has indicated that the Fed may start cutting interest rates from September, but he sees no justification for a drastic cut. This uncertainty has increased market volatility and many investors have fled into bonds, and yields have fallen. At the end of the month, Nvidia published its second quarter results, which exceeded investor expectations, but the company's less optimistic forecasts were disappointing. Nvidia, seen as the flagship of the artificial intelligence wave, is also being watched by many as the performance of many technology companies could be affected by its month-end report. In Hungary, the MNB's interest rate policy has reached a turning point, as the one-and-a-half-year cycle of rate cuts appears to be coming to an end, with the central bank leaving the base rate at 6.75% at its August policy meeting. This is consistent with declining inflationary pressures, but we do not rule out further rate cuts in the event of weak economic performance. Another important consideration is the forint exchange rate, which has shown considerable volatility recently, so we believe that an implicit moderation of this may have played a role in the decision.

In line with global equity market movements, the main Polish equity indices started August with a significant fall, but after a quick bounce back, they ended the period slightly higher. Apart from CCC, retail sector companies were significant underperformers and a spectacular rebound in consumption is still to come, although Polish GDP growth was outstanding by regional standards. Utilities stocks were similarly weak over the month. There was no significant divergence between the performance of the oil and banking sectors, which are significant heavyweights. The Fund underperformed its benchmark in August. The underperformance was driven by stock selection in the retail sector. The utilities sector underperformed the benchmark, while we selectively bought stocks in the banking and consumer discretionary sectors. We are slightly overweight the banking sector. The Fund had an average equity exposure 3% higher than the benchmark index in August.
