MONTHLY report - 2024 NOVEMBER (made on: 11/30/2024)

INVESTMENT POLICY OF THE FUND

MARKET SUMMARY

In Switzerland, inflation slightly increased in November, with prices rising by 0.7% compared to the previous year, in line with market expectations. The rise in prices is mainly driven by higher rental costs, but clothing prices also increased. In 2025, further declines in inflation are expected, as interest rate cuts are projected to slow the future growth of rental costs. Additionally, from January, energy prices in Switzerland will drop by an average of 10%, further contributing to lower inflation. A December interest rate cut is thus almost certain, and further easing is expected throughout next year, with the base rate possibly dropping to 0.5% according to market expectations. However Martin Schlegel, governor of the central bank has emphasized multiple times that rates could be reduced below 0% if achieving price stability is at risk. During November, economic activity has increased, as the KOF Swiss Economic Institute's economic barometer rose to 101.8 points from last month's 99.7. Growth was supported by manufacturing companies, as well as generally favorable conditions on the demand side, although the outlook for foreign demand remains weak. During the month, short-term bond yields continued to fall, with a 12 basis point decrease on the 1-year maturity and a 18 basis point decrease on the 3-year maturity.
