MONTHLY report - 2025 FEBRUARY (made on: 02/28/2025)

INVESTMENT POLICY OF THE FUND

MARKET SUMMARY

In Switzerland, inflation decreased further in February, arriving at 0,3% slightly above market expectations. The slowdown in inflation was mainly driven by the subdued rise in hotel and restaurant prices, but rents also increased at a slower pace than a year ago. According to the central bank's latest communication, they will only cut interest rates below 0% if absolutely necessary — that is, if this step is the only way to keep inflation within the 0-2% range. As a result, interest rate cut expectations for this year have somewhat faded. Current market expectations suggest another rate cut could come in March, but there is only a 50% probability assigned to another cut in June. The central bank expects the Swiss economy to grow between 1% and 1.5% this year. Growth is likely to be driven mainly by the services sector, as the manufacturing industry is still suffering from geopolitical risks and weak external demand. In January, economic activity declined, with the KOF Swiss Economic Institute's economic barometer falling to 101.7 points from the previous month's (upwardly revised) 103. The manufacturing sector remains weak, although foreign demand has somewhat offset the negative developments. Short-term bond yields in Switzerland continued their upward trend. The 1-year yields rose by 1 basis point, while the 3-year yields increased by 7 basis points.
