Market Summary:

The central banks of the world aggressively lowered their key interest rates in November, since recession is here, and inflation isn't a threat nowadays. According to these moves the yield level in the international bond market lowered a lot. The Fund significantly profited from these yield drops. Long-term bond investments offer a good investment opportunity against stocks in a deflation sided recession. The additional demand on bonds will lead to further price lifts, and the bond investors will gain from this fact too.
