Investment Policy of the Fund:

The aim of the fund is to give a capital-protected alternative investment opportunity which should enable clients to achieve access return without risking their capital. The structure of the fund itself gives the capital protection: At the beginning of every year, the Fund buys T-bills and keeps cash in repos and deposits which should cover its capital protection. The remaining part of the money is invested opportunistically in various options. The options are actively traded in a range of markets (FX, equities, futures) but since they can only be bought and sold but never written, this can not result in a big loss, so the capital protection can never be in danger. The capital protection means that on the first workday of every year the NAV of the Fund can not be less than at the first workday of the previous year. The investor, who buys the Fund any time during the year can be sure that on the first day of the next year the Fund's NAV will be at least as much as on the first day of this year. However, during the year, the Fund's NAV can vary widely. Another important feature of the Fund is that while most option-and Tbill based funds buy the options and keep them until expiry, we actively manage the portfolio, so the success (return) of the Fund depends on whether the Fund Manager's expectations turn out to be right.

Market Summary:

The performance of the AEGON Ózon Capital Protected Derivative Fund is convenient, but we will try to reach better gains in the last quarter of the year by taking a bit more risk. It will not be an easy thing to do, since we don't have any serious directional opinion right now: the pessimism is too big on the market, which could lift the markets, but the fundamentals are still very bad. According to these factors it is possible that we will face a range trading in the equity markets.
