INVESTMENT POLICY OF THE FUND:

The AEGON Atticus Alfa Derivative Fund is able to invest in practically "everything", according to the anticipation of the Fund Manager. The Fund invests mainly in equities, equity indices and opens forward currency positions, but it can also invest in commodity markets. This total return derivative fund represents more risk than our "long-only" total return fund, the Moneymaxx, since it can use double leverage by investing into derivatives and futures. In other words, the value of the positions of the Fund can be the double of its capital resources. The balance of the Fund might change by as much as 2%, should the price of the fund's assets change by 1%. Leverage has the potential to enlarge profits or losses by the same magnitude. The greater the amount of leverage on capital you apply, the higher the risk that you will assume. The Fund is allowed to take long positions and uncovered short positions, as well. According to this, the Fund can bet on a bullish market or on a bearish market situation, too. The investment policy of the Fund is very similar to the so-called global "macro hedge fund" which was made famous by George Soros's Quantum Fund.

MARKET SUMMARY:

We gained 9.29% in October thanks to the investor friendly market environment. We increased our equity exposure aggressively to 80% last 3 month because of technical and fundamental issues. The fear of the sluggish economy performance is overreacted by our view. Macro data are showing little slowdown, but corporate profitabilities are in good shape. Zero interest rate and accommodative monetary policy, US twister operation, ECB rate cut and Swiss and Japanese interventions can balance negative effect of debt crisis, slow-down and deleveraging. We are very optimistic and bullish on equities and commodities on long run. Major equities shows bottoming process and start to bounce back from oversold area towards new highs maybe, so technical picture is in line with our fundamental view and support our position.
