MARKET SUMMARY:

June was dominated equity market corrections, although most markets seemed to revert to expansion by the end of the month. On the last weekend of June, however, talks between Greece and the Troika collapsed sending markets into a dose dive, triggering 2-5 pct losses in the major indices. Interestingly, many equity markets traded close to recent highs (in some cases all time highs) just before tumbling on the Greek news.

Trends on the fx markets were mixed with no major directions in the G7 space at a time when most em currencies weakened led by HUF and some commodity-linked markets. Long term interest rates increased in June, following previous trends.

Aegon Panoráma Fund kept risk levels below target for most of the month but increased it just before Greece crashed with its creditors. That pulled the fund down on the month.
