MARKET SUMMARY:

Equity markets rebounded after the shocking Greece almost-default at the beginning of the month, but traded sideways for the rest of July. Europe was relatively strong with emerging markets on the back foot. The latter was exacerbated by the poor performance of the em currency complex against the USD dollar.

Commodities were weak led by renewed fall in oil, while major supports failed in gold and industrial metals without major follow through in the month.

Aegon Panoráma Fund was running a neutral equity portfolio with 40% long in ETFs and equities, which were hedged by a basket of equity futures. At the second half of the month we opened short positions in gold, copper, and selective emerging market currencies against the US dollar.
