MARKET SUMMARY:

Equities did not close strongly in October as except for the Japanese market, main equity indices lost from their value. The increasing fear of FED rate hike and the risk aversion caused by the US presidential election did not support equities. The banking sector was the best performing industry in October as a result of rising interest rates and better-than-expected corporate earnings. The probability of FED rate hike in December escalated during the month and because of that USD was strong compared to major currencies in October. European Central Bank postponed its decision about the future of its QE program due to the fact that decision makers want to wait for the result of FED meeting in December. GBP was punished during the month since it seems like British government pursues a "hard Brexit", which means that Britons will not only leave EU, but also EU's single market in exchange for regaining better control of their immigration policy. Investors started to accommodate themselves to US presidential election at the end of the month by decreasing their risky assets. According to polls, Hillary Clinton has better chances to win the election, which would be a more pleasant outcome for equity markets. After starting strong, oil prices fell from their one-year highs thanks to OPEC, which backed out from its oil freezing agreement, and the strong USD. As a result, oil ended up in the negative territory in October.

The fund held negative net equity exposure during the whole month which was coupled with oil short, EURUSD short and later with USDTRY long.
