INVESTMENT POLICY OF THE FUND:

The fund aims to share in the yields on equity markets in the Asian region, and to profit from the region's economic growth through share price gains and dividend income. Given the risk profiles of the equity investments, the fund is classified as a high-risk investment. The fund invests its capital in equity-type instruments of the target countries. The fund aims to create an opportunity for investors to invest in equity markets that are representative of the Asian economies. The most important target countries are Hong Kong, India, China, South Korea and Taiwan, but the fund also invests in the capital markets of other Asian countries. This may be achieved through the purchase of individual shares or through collective investment instruments. The fund plans to invest predominantly in the latter, and accordingly, it primarily buys into exchange-traded funds (ETFs) and open-ended public investment funds. In accordance with our obligation under law, we draw the attention of all investors to the fact that the fund is a fund that invests in other investment funds; in other words, in accordance with its investment policy it may invest more than 80 percent of its assets in investment fund shares or securities issued by other collective investment instruments. However, the fund's portfolio will not contain shares of any single investment fund in a weight of over 20%. The fund only invests in investment vehicles whose expense ratio is less than 2.5%, though it always strives to ensure that the overall average fee burden does not exceed 1%.

MARKET SUMMARY:

After 6 years the old Wall Street axiom, sell in May and go away, has worked again. It was in 2012, when the S&P 500 index had such a bad month. Back then it fell 6.3%, last month the index returned -6.6%. But this was still better than the emerging markets performance, which closed down the month by 7.5%. There were multiple factors that contributed to last month's bad performance. First of all, the American-Chinese trade war clouded the investment horizon. At the beginning of the month, the major indices opened at new all-time highs because investors were hopeful, that the trade conflict will be resolved soon. But the American president had other thoughts, and raised the tariffs to 25% on imports from China to the United States. At the end of the month the US president imposed 5% tariffs on Mexican goods too, although he just signed the new NAFTA agreement a few months ago. The macro economic data was mixed in May. So far, it seems that the tariff war does not hurt the US economy. More people are working, the GDP is expanding and the inflation is negligible. However the Chinese macro-economic data suggest the opposite. Their GDP is shrinking, the inflation is growing, and the export numbers fell off dramatically. So far, it looks like the U.S. is winning the trade war but as we know the Chinese are planning for the next 2 years but rather the next 50. We are looking cautiously ahead for the next few months. Certain data suggests that a defensive approach should be appropriate in the near term. The falling yield on the 10 and 30 bonds might suggest a slowing economy, but the 3 month-10 year spread might suggest that even a mild recession is not out of order. Europe looks bleakly too, the German 10 year yield hit a new all-time low, and the Brexit is still hovering on the horizon. In May, the emerging markets underperformed the developed markets but the fund was still able to outperform the benchmark. The fund is overweight in Japanese and Indonesian stocks, and because of the stretched valuations, underweighted in the Taiwanese and Korean markets. In the region, the Indian and Japanese indices outperformed while the Chinese and Taiwanese indices underperformed.
