

INVESTMENT POLICY OF THE FUND

The Fund's investment goal is to generate yields that are higher than those available on the Hungarian money market for its investors, primarily by investing in the bond market of the emerging European region. The Fund's objective is to establish a portfolio for its Investors that generates positive yields – higher than the yields available on the domestic money market – under all circumstances, in other words the Fund pursues a so-called absolute yield strategy. It intends to accomplish this goal primarily by investing in the bond market of the emerging European region.

In the context of the implementation of its investment strategy, the Fund Manager first and foremost focuses on emerging European hard currency (USD and EUR-denominated) government and corporate bonds, exploiting its expertise and know-how of the region. For diversification purposes, the Fund may also purchase other bonds (government securities, corporate bonds, mortgage bonds) typically issued in the region and denominated in local currency and, furthermore, may also conclude forward and other derivative transactions to establish an efficient portfolio.

The Fund's general risk level is determined based on the Fund Manager's four-pillared (foundations, valuation levels, market sentiment, technical factors) regular market analysis and situational assessment. The in-depth analysis also has a substantial impact on the selection of individual securities in terms of region, sector and interest-rate risk. In the course of the selection of the various securities, the thorough financial analysis of the issuer (aimed at creditworthiness) is also essential. Risk management and the regular monitoring of issuers are of paramount importance in the case of the Fund.

The Fund may enter into derivative transactions only for hedging purposes or for the purpose of development of an efficient portfolio. The Fund may keep collective investment forms following derivative indices, without leverage. The Fund may take significant foreign exchange exposures as well, which, in a basic situation, is fully funded by the Fund Management Company but, depending on the market circumstances, the Fund may have even an open foreign exchange position. The Fund primarily aims to generate yields for its Investors through its bond investments.

MARKET SUMMARY

A perfect storm hit the markets at the second half of the month, thus September proved to be a weaker month for financial assets. The main story in the month was a big rise in energy prices, which is not only set to have a big impact on consumers, but is also creating headaches for central banks as they face a fresh round of inflationary pressures. WTI oil prices led the sample with a +9.5% increase, though Brent crude (+7.6%) wasn't far behind in USD terms. Alongside this came an astonishing surge in natural gas prices, which got the market wondering whether how big of a negative impact this might have on growth let alone consumer prices. Topping it up, the Evergrande default also got markets on their toes and the main question is what are the short and long term impacts of the default of one of the biggest real estate names.

In Europe Turkish central bank also surprised the markets with a cut of the base rate to 18,5%, which - in the light of the global inflationary pressures mounting - caused a rapid devaluation in country's currency.

During the month, we took on Mexican local duration exposure with open fx position, we sold high yield names in EM hard currency, like Ghana and Turkey. We are rather cautious going forward as we believe the inflation pressures will remain with us in the fourth quarter and we also see that the heating season in the northern hemisphere might pose some further challenges ahead. As tapering in the US is probably going to get underway and that is going to be a headwind also for the asset class.
